Located on the island's rugged south coast, Ardbeg distillery represents the peatier end of the Islay spectrum. While it has endured some tough times, spending several years mothballed, the distillery has undergone a bit of a renaissance since being bought over by Glenmorangie and is now on a stable footing.

While it still retains its signature sooty spirit, Ardbeg has also adopted its new parent company's fondness for experimental cask finishes, arguably increasing its appeal.

This is an older style 10 Year Old from their pre-Glenmorangie days.

40% ABV / 75cl
